

Krumelur

Following some early musical experimentation the Krumelur project was launched sometime around 1998-99 by Fredrik Larsson. After a couple of years of ever intensifying exploration, a full length album, Minimal Animal, was released in 2002 with danish Crotus Records. A personal sound and some experimental techniques made it a smash hit in some circles, selling out quickly world wide and gaining reputation and respect well beyond its limited pressing. A period followed of live gigs and releases on compilations with a global scope. Labels like Nova Tekk, Digital Psionics, Deja Vu, Dance n Dust and many more featured the somewhat raw and edgy sound of Krumelur. This, including live gigs all over Europe and in countries like Israel, Brazil and Australia helped shape the Krumelur sound into a global underground phenomena.

After countless hours of studio work a second album was released, this time with Zenon Records from Australia. Paramoral came out in august 2006, featuring a matured sound flirting with both jazz aswell as minimal techno and electro.

Kroppsspråk

Relocated to Berlin from Sweden in early 2006, heavily influenced by the flourishing underground techno scene there, Kroppsspråk is yet another musical manifestation of the inner multiverse of Fredrik Larsson. Gathering, analyzing and merging with the massive flow of differing sounds in the techno capital of the world, yet seeking something distinctly unique. It seems absolutely essential for thousands of people to take part of the dance thing, a shared experience of ecstasy, communicating by body movement, manifesting life through motion - body language, kroppsspråk.
